

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

Explanation

For seven years the Library has conducted a number of home libraries and reading clubs among children in the city who live at too great distance from the Library buildings to make use easily of their children's rooms. Many of these children are of foreign parentage, the parents of some speaking no English, and a great variety of nationality and race is represented—English, Scotch, Irish, Welsh, Hungarian, Italian, Bohemian, German, Swedish, French, Dutch, Hebrew (German, Russian, Polish), Slav and Negro.

A home library consists of a small case of books placed in a child's home. At a stated time each week ten or twelve children of the neighborhood meet about the bookcase, and a visitor from the Library gives out the books, reads aloud or tells stories, and in various ways makes the "library hour" pass pleasantly with profit to the children. The home library groups consist chiefly of younger children and girls, but the reading clubs, which do not meet in homes but in school rooms or special club rooms, are composed principally of older boys. A member of the library staff has the general direction of the work, but most of the visitors who have charge of the groups and clubs are not members of the library staff, but give their services to it for this work. It is to meet the special needs of these volunteer visitors, who have little time to read the children's books, that this catalogue has been compiled.

The books in this collection have been selected carefully for the special work and not with the idea of making an ideal selection of children's books for general use. Most of the children who become members of the home library groups and reading clubs have read little and therefore are not able to comprehend and enjoy many of the best books for children. Experience has taught us that if we wish these children to read at all, we must begin by giving them the classic myths and folklore retold in a simple way or popular modern books full of action and adventure, and then lead them gradually to more solid reading. Therefore, the greater number of the books listed in this catalogue are popular in character.

and the entries are grouped under headings of interest to boys and girls. Since so many of the children are of foreign parentage, there is a preponderance of books on American history and stories of American life. The popular lists are supplemented by special lists of "classic and standard stories," which include mythology, folklore, etc. as well as fiction. The books in these lists are not generally popular with the children in the home library groups and reading clubs, and therefore few duplicate copies are purchased, though the popular books are duplicated freely, especially those for the younger children. Careful choice is made of editions, as we believe in the elevating influence of a book that is beautiful in binding, illustrations and general appearance.

There is in preparation as a supplement to this catalogue a "visitors' handbook," containing suggestions for organizing and conducting home libraries and reading clubs. It will also contain lists of stories to tell, lists of books and chapters of books to read aloud, and lists of books for the use of mothers and home library visitors.
